Comments concerning proposed rulemakings

After reviewing the proposed changes to 3.65 "Critical Designation of Natural Gas Infrastructure", I believe that the modifications were very well thought out and are a much improved approach. It is a very good balance between the needed production and electricity distribution for that production. I agree that the new thresholds make much more sense, especially concerning casinghead gas, which tends to be more distributed and considerably lower in volume. I applaud the RRC's approach to this issue and believe the modifications will have a positive result.
